A. W. TIBBALS ADMITS FRAUD, OFFICIALS SAY

Forged Notes Expected To Total More Than $35,000, Police Say

LIMA CONCERN INVOLVED

Affidavit Filed by B. F. Wiant, Advantage Loan & Discount Co. Secretary

Operations covering a period of more than a year, during which time, police say, funds estimated at $35,000 had been obtained through fraudulent notes, came to a close here Saturday when A. W. Tibbals, 37, McKinley-pl, head of the A. W. Tibbals Co., N. Main-st, was placed under arrest.

The affidavit was filed against Tibbals by B. T. Wiant, as secretary of the Advantage Loan & Discount Co. It charged that Tibbals had given a forged note for $812, signed with the name H. W. Williams, a fictitious character, supposed to be living at Upper Sandusky, a private residence.

Admits Fraud, Claim

Tibbals, police say, signed a statement admitting the signature was a forgery. He also admitted, it is said, that he had signed many such notes.

Tibbals' arrest followed an investigation covering a period of more than a week by B. E. Bindley, local representative of the National Detective Bureau working at the direction of the Advantage Loan & Discount Co.

According to the police, Tibbals has given forged notes that will total approximately $35,000. A Lima loan company is said to hold notes amounting to $22,000 while the loan companies in this city are said to hold worthless notes amounting to more than $13,000.

Definite facts could not be obtained today. Statements made by Tibbals following his arrest last Saturday were taken in shorthand, and according to Hector Young, attorney for the Advantage Loan & Discount Co. the notes had not been transcribed, and their substance could not be given out.

When arrested Tibbals had $343.00 in cash and a check for $250 in his

SAY INSURANCE BILL IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Urge Donahey To Veto Myers Measure; Decision Expected Tonight

Columbus, May 23—Claiming the measure is unconstitutional, Judge Harry L. Conn and Attorney A. L. Vorys, of Columbus, former state superintendents of insurance, today appealed to Gov. Vic Donahey to veto the Myers Bill which provides for increasing the state excise tax on gross premiums of foreign insurance companies operating in Ohio from two and one-half to three per cent.

Conn and Vorys addressed the governor during a hearing conducted by Donahey in his office this forenoon relative to protests from more than 2,500 insurance officials, agents and other Ohioans urging the governor to veto the Myers Bill. About 75 representatives of insurance concerns attended the hearing.

Rep. Jacob Woehrle, Columbus, a member of the Ohio House of Representatives, told the governor that many solons voted for the Myers Bill, thinking it would not affect any Ohio insurance company. He said he could name at least 12 or 14 other members, including himself, who would have voted against the bill if they had known "the true situation." He asked the governor to veto the Myers Bill.

George B. Chandler, Columbus, executive secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, on behalf "of organized business of Ohio," urged Donahey to veto the bill. Chandler stated that chambers of commerce in cities throughout the state protested against this measure and that 36 of the 45 members of the board of directors, Ohio Chamber of Commerce, recommended that the governor veto it. At the close of the hearing, Governor Donahey announced that he did not know just what action he will take, but promised to "settle this question before midnight tonight in a manner which I believe to be right."

MARINES HELD

American Force To Remain in Nicaragua To Preserve Order

Washington, May 23—Peace has come to Nicaragua but American marines will have to be maintained there indefinitely to preserve order.

This was the gist of a report submitted to President Coolidge today by Henry L. Stimson, who, as Mr. Coolidge's personal representative, conducted the negotiations which stopped the fighting in Nicaragua.

There is still some guerrila fighting but the organized troops have laid down their arms, Stimson said.

Two Men Indicted Plead Guilty; Are Sentenced To Mansfield Reformatory

Attorney Howard Stevens Enters Not Guilty Plea; Put Under Bond of $5,000; June 7 Fixed as Trial Date by Common Pleas Judge Scofield

Two of the men indicted by the grand jury were sentenced to the Mansfield Reformatory this morning and arrangements for placing eight others on trial were completed in the court of common pleas.

The remaining five included in the indictment list will be sentenced or their trial days fixed within the next few days.

Among the eight now scheduled for trial is Howard A. Stevens, Marion attorney who was indicted on an embezzlement charge. Stevens failed to appear for arraignment Saturday morning when the others entered their pleas before Judge Scofield but reported to Sheriff Deal late Saturday afternoon.

Stevens explained that his attorney, Grant E. Mouser, Sr., was out of the city Saturday and that he did not report for arraignment for that reason.

Stevens went before Judge Scofield shortly after 11 o'clock this morning and entered a plea of not guilty. His bond was set at $5,000 and June 7 fixed as the date for trial. He was making an effort to obtain the bond this afternoon.

McAdams Pleas Guilty

Pearl McAdams, who pleaded not guilty to an automobile theft charge when arraigned Saturday, changed his plea to guilty this morning and was sentenced to the Mansfield Reformatory. He was arrested with Raymond Needles in connection with the theft of a Chevrolet sedan from Safety Director W. B. Strayer. Needles has pleaded not guilty and his trial date is to be fixed in a few days.

Leslie J. West, alias John Walker, of Prospect, also was sentenced to the reformatory on the charge of drawing

DARGUE AND LOCHNER ON GOOD WILL AIR TOUR

Pair Plan To Visit 33 States and Attend 70 Gatherings

Washington, May 23 — While the world was still applauding the achievement of Capt. Charles Lindbergh, another American aviator, Maj. Herbert A. Dargue, slipped quietly out of Washington today aboard the army plane New York II to further the cause of aviation in yet another manner.

With Walter O. Lochner, of Trenton, N. J., president of the National Association of Commercial Secretaries, as his companion, Dargue, commander of the recent 20,000-mile Pan-American flight, hopped off toward Harrisburg, Pa., on a good will tour that will cover 10,000 miles and 33 states.

Messages of goodwill from official Washington will be delivered to the governors on each of the states visited. During the seven weeks of the flight Dargue and Lochner will address more than 70 luncheon and dinner meetings, which will be attended by leading business men and public officials.

The primary purpose of the flight is to "bring to the direct attention of American business men the tremendous progress in and the possibilities of commercial as well as military aviation."

"COP" IS HERO

"Rookie" Officer Killed in Trying To Save Mother and Nephew

New York, May 23—In a vain effort to save his mother and a three-year-old nephew from death, Patrolman Walter Wahl, a "rookie" cop, was killed by smoke in a fire at his Brooklyn home today. All three were suffocated in a blaze that did comparatively little material damage.

Wahl was trapped when he ran into the house to carry his mother, Mrs. Barbara Wahl, and Robert Hudson to safety. An official report of his heroism was made to the police department by the fire marshal.

LOCAL BORER HEADQUARTERS CLOSE TONIGHT

Extermination Campaign on Much Smaller Scale Than First Planned

ON EXEMPTION LIST

Possible That Farmers May Secure Large Remuneration for Regulation Observance

The corn borer extermination campaign in Marion County is going to amount to only a small fraction of the general clean-up drive originally planned.

This was indicated unofficially today by persons in close touch with the situation. The prediction is based upon last week's announcement that the federal department of agriculture had modified the original clean-up regulations by exempting wheat, oats, rye and barley fields in that part of the Ohio quarantine area where corn borer infestation is known to be less than one per cent.

This exemption order applies to 31 counties, including Marion County, according to an announcement made today by L. H. Worthley, federal official in charge of the corn borer campaign in five states.

To Close Headquarters

Practical assurance that the clean-up drive in Marion County is not to be very vigorous was evident today when it was announced that local corn borer campaign headquarters on Mill-st will be closed tonight.

The office has been in charge of Banks Collings, Celina, a representative, O. S. U., college of agriculture, who came here on March 21 to direct an educational campaign preparatory to the corn borer clean-up drive.

The educational work, the purpose of which was to induce farmers to comply with the government's clean-up orders, came to a close on May 10, when the enforcement drive was sched-

LEWIS OPTIMISTIC

United Mine Workers Head Expects Settlement Developments Soon

Pittsburgh, May 23—John L. Lewis, president of the United Miner Workers of America, here to confer with union leaders in this district on the bituminous coal suspension, was optimistic over the ultimate outcome of the industrial controversy between the miners and operators.

While Lewis would not be quoted to that effect, he left the impression with interviewers that he expects developments late in June or early in July which may reasonably be expected to result in a settlement.

The measure, a part of the financial program enacted by the state legislature, is expected to add $800,000 to the state treasury during December, this year and $600,000 in June next year

YOUNG FLIER IS OVERCOME WITH HONORS

Youth's One Thought After Viewing His Plane Is To Fly Over Paris and "See the Town"; Necessary To Drag Him Away from Hangar

PARIS, May 23—Decorated with the ribbon of the Legion of Honor, kissed on both cheeks and called a brave man by the president of France, flooded with commercial offers that would make him wealthy, and the object of the adoration of thousands, Capt. Charles Lindbergh expressed just one wish today.

Lindbergh wants to fly over Paris and really "see the town."

Having arrived at Paris at night, ending his historic transatlantic solo flight, Lindbergh saw but little of Paris from the air except the lights. Now he wants to "really see the town."

The first thought of the flier today was for his plane and as soon as he had eaten a hurried breakfast at the American Embassy he motored out to Le Bourget, the scene of the triumphal finish of his flight.

Kissed By Guard

"It's larger than I thought," said Lindbergh, when he had his first glimpse of the field by daylight. "Is there a ditch over there?" he inquired pointing to a spot near where he landed. "I thought there was and I was afraid I would hit it. Lindbergh laughed when he saw there was no ditch there.

Then Lindbergh made straight for the hangar where his plane is quartered. A French civilian guarding the entrance to the hangar recognized the lad and stopped him. Lindbergh was nonplussed and the French guard reached up and took Lindbergh's face in his hands and kissed him on both cheeks and then permitted him to pass while other guards without shame wiped tears of joy from their eyes. The American flier was blushing and embarrassed for American hangar attendants and mechanics had never treated him like this.

Almost affectionately he patted his plane as he carefully examined it and pronounced it not as badly damaged as he had expected, after it had had escaped from the clutches of the welcoming mobs.

Wants to See Town

"My immediately plans aren't definite," to said. "There is one thing I particularly want to do. I want to fly over Paris as soon as the necessary small repairs can be made on my plane."

Still exulting in the condition of his plane, it become necessary to almost drag Lindbergh away from the hangar in order that he might keep his engagement with President Doumergue.

After a rather embarrassing few minutes with the president, while accepting the high honor bestowed on him by France, Lindbergh strolled through the Elysee Gardens and chatted with French officials. When he left there was a crowd of more than a thousand waiting at the palace gates to give him a reception.

"I'm overcome with joy," was all that Lindbergh could say to his admirers.

The flier returned to the American Embassy for lunch and later this afternoon will attend a reception to be given him by the Aero Club of France

WANT LINDY TO BE HAILED ACE OF DIPLOMATS

High Government Officials Believe He Has Restored Good Will of France

Washington, May 23—Along with the congressional medal of honor, the distinguished flying cross and the other spangles that probably will be pinned upon Capt. "Slim" Lindbergh's broad chest when he returns to Washington there should be one designating him as the ace of American diplomats. Official Washington, reflecting upon his exploit, was pretty well agreed upon that today.

By his epochal flight, and more particularly by the modest manner in which he is accepting the acclaim of the world, this sandy-haired youngster from the middle west, in his silly old flying suit, has done more than all the frock-coated diplomats in the world could have done to restore Franco-American cordiality.

Relations Strained

It is no secret in Washington that many times during the past few years there has been really grave concern felt by administration officials over the trend of Franco-American relations. Starting with the senate's failure to ratify the Treaty of Versailles, and continuing on down through the efforts to adjust the war debts, there has been almost constant bickering between Washington and Paris. It has, at times, been far more serious than the government cared for the public to know.

The French press has delighted in firing barbed-shafts at everything American. Shooting at Uncle Sam has been a favorite indoor sport of Parisian journalists. Returning tourists have regaled home folk with the unpopularity of Americans in France, and French newspapers have confirmed the fact.

CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL SOUGHT

St. Louis, May 23—The congressional medal of honor will be sought for Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh by one of the Missouri senators, U. S. Sen. Harry B. Hawes declared today.

"I will see Senator Reed about it," the junior senator said. "Either he or myself will introduce the measure—there will be no fight over that part of it. We cannot do too much for that boy and he deserves all the honors that can be bestowed upon him."

MARION GRASPS FOR STAR EXTRA ON LINDY'S FLIGHT

MARION interest in the flight of Capt. Charles Lindbergh Saturday was at white heat, appeased only when the news was flashed that the intrepid flier had reached Paris.

The Star published three editions Saturday afternoon as Lindbergh flew on to Paris. The first edition cared for the mail and suburban subscribers while the city edition was held as long as possible to give city patrons the latest news. Finally, The Star "extra-ed" on Lindbergh's arrival in the French capital. The extra was held back until a column and a half of news on his arrival was received, thus giving readers more than just a "flash" as did the out-of town newspapers coming into Marion.

The complete story that The Star used in its extra Saturday afternoon was the same story that a number of the Sunday newspapers used. Public appreciation of The Star extra was revealed in the large sale, one of the largest extra sales recorded in Marion.

LINDY REJECTS CINEMA OFFER

Paris, May 23—Captain Lindbergh, hero of the solo flight from New York to Paris, has rejected the first offer he has received to appear in the movies.

Lindbergh received Adolph Zukor this morning and was given an offer to appear on the films. Lindbergh rejected the offer, at least temporarily. His friends said he might consider this and similar offers later.

At 6 o'clock tonight he will call on Premier Poincare.

Herrick's Guest

Lindbergh has accepted Ambassador Herrick's invitation to remain his guest for several days. He was still wearing borrowed clothes today, except for the shoes which he wore across the Atlantic. He has accepted the offer of the Paris representative of a St. Louis commercial concern to outfit him entirely.

American Legion officials in Paris are overjoyed at the great reception Lindbergh is being accorded here and declare that this flight has done much to insure the American Legionnaires a warm welcome when they arrive in Paris. Debts and other Franco-American problems have been forgotten in the excitement of the great admiration for Lindbergh, and the anti-Americanism which was reported a fortnight ago has changed to a wave of pro-Americanism.

Rainbow Hits Plane

Lindbergh arose at 9 o'clock this morning and after he had breakfasted and fought his way through throngs of admirers he made a straight line for Le Bourget, where he examined "The Spirit of St. Louis," and found it not

HOOVER NAMED TO SUPERVISE REHABILITATION

Secretary Commissioned by Coolidge To Handle $400,000,000 Reconstruction

FLOOD RUSHES ONWARD

Rescue Fleet of 600 Craft To Carry Refugees from Southern Louisiana

Baton Rouge, May 23 — After four weeks in active charge of relief activities in the water-blighted Mississippi Valley, Secretary of Commerce Hoover has been commissioned by President Coolidge to assume, in behalf of the national government, general supervision and coordination of the $400,000,000 reconstruction program already organized in the several flood staggered states.

After a hurried trip to Washington early next week to lay before the chief executive a final report on flood devastation, Secretary Hoover will return to the lower valley for two or three weeks to maintain day-to-day contact with the work of rehabilitating between 17,000 and 20,000 square miles of flooded territory.

200,000 Refugees

A recapitulation today of Red Cross relief work since mid-April places at 500,000 the number of refugees cared for in 64 concentration camps. From this figure, Red Cross officials estimate that almost 750,000 persons were driven from their homes during the first weeks sweep of the flood waters though the 700 miles of valley from southern Illinois. About one third, it is estimated, found refuge with relatives or friends in dry sections. Property losses, including estimates for the last 50 mile stretch of central Louisiana still to go under, are estimated at $400,000,000. The death toll stands today between 300 and 350. Less than 300 cases of serious disease are reported.

Returning to Baton Rouge today after a three-day swing around the 350-mile flood-rimmed circle of central Louisiana, Secretary Hoover devoted himself immediately to the rehabilitation work he was forced to drop 10 days ago when the crumbling west bank Mississippi levee unloosed the river over more than one fifth of Louisiana's 40,000 square miles.

200 Rescue Craft

A rescue fleet of some 600 craft is in readiness to carry refugees to camp from the extreme southern end of the state when the crest of the inland sea now rolling over St. Landry, St. Martin and Iberville Parishes rushes upon Iberia, Assumption, St. Mary and Terre Bonne, bordering the Gulf of Mexico, during the latter part of this week.

Morgan City, in St. Mary Parish, and the most southerly city in the path of the Atchafalaya basin flood which has swept over two million acres in southern Louisiana during the past 10 days, is to get between 11 and 13 feet of water by the end of the week, according to Sunday's forecast of the New Orleans weather bureau.

PRE-SCHOOL CLINICS IN MARION SCHOOLS OPEN

Physical Examinations Sponsored by Parent-Teacher Council Being Made

Pre-school clinics to be held in local schools this week, opened today in three Marion schools under the direction of the Parent-Teacher Council. The clinics permit each child expecting to enter school here next fall, to undergo a complete physical examination free of charge. A complete report of his condition will be forwarded his parents or guardian so that medical attention, if necessary, may be obtained before the opening of school next fall. Clinics were held at the Davids Street School, where more than 100 children were in attendance, this morning, and at the Greenwood and Forest Lawn Street Schools this afternoon.

Medical aid is furnished by the state department of health. In immediate charge here is Dr. N. Bitritt, county health commissioner, and Dr. W. J. Weiser, city health commissioner, assisted by a number of local physicians.

The clinics will be held at Veroma Heights Junior High School Tuesday morning, at the N. Main Street School Tuesday afternoon and an all-day session at the Lincoln Building, the same day.

2,000-MILE FLIGHT TO BE TRIED BY WILKINS

Seward, Alaska, May 23—A 2,000-mile flight from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Wash., on the northern tip of Vancouver Island, will be attempted by Capt. George Wilkins and his pilot, Earl Borland, it was learned today.

Wilkins and Borland planned to start off Saturday. A light plane from the Pacific Coast, however, caused them to postpone their hop-off.

Lindbergh Thinks Nothing of His Own Skill, Prowess, But Sees in His Flight Test of Man-Made Machinery

PARIS, May 23—Capt. Charles Lindbergh is very certain that his flight across the Atlantic was a great achievement—not for Lindbergh but for a mechanical, man-made contrivance known as an airplane.

That is what one gathers from conversation with the plucky young American airman who is today the idol of all the world.

Lindbergh is inwardly just as proud as can be of his feat, not proud of himself but proud of the airplane as a partner, and oftimes indicating that he believes the airplanes and the instruments which brought him over.

In all of his conversation of the flight the youth continually speaks of "we," as though he regarded the airplane and the instruments of navigation were more than an equal partner.

The fact that the rest of the world regards the human element in this flight as the greatest feature, doesn't seem to occur to Lindbergh. To him, apparently the human factor was very small. One almost imagines him explaining, "Why, I didn't have to do anything except sit there and watch the instruments and see that the engine kept going." To Lindbergh this flight was not a test of human courage and endurance, but rather a test of man-made machinery, and his joy of conquest is all in the achievements of his machine, with little or no thought for his own glorification.

Scientists and aerial experts, however, take a different viewpoint. In the United States it was the skill and quick action of Lindbergh that carried the plane with its tremendous load into the air. Throughout the thousands of miles of flight it was the active and alert mind of Lindbergh that maneuvered the machine through fog, sleet and storm and kept it straight on the course. On landing it was the very active and trained mind of a great pilot that brought the plane down out of the clouds in the darkness, hampered by confusing ground signals, and landed it as safely as though making an ordinary landing in full daylight,

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS TO ATTEND STATE MEET

Marion Council Completes Plans for Sending Delegation to Ironton

Plans for sending a delegation to the annual state convention of the United Commercial Travelers to be held at Ironton, June 2 and 3, were completed at the monthly session of Marion Council, No. 120 Saturday night. It is expected that at least 10 members of the local council will attend. Stanley C. Strayer will be the delegate from here and E. H. Huggins, secretary of Marion Council, will also be an official representative. Mr. Huggins is to attend the annual conference of secretaries which will take place June 1, the day preceding the opening convention session.

Marion Council is expected to receive prominent mention in the convention proceedings, due to the fact that it had more than 12 per cent membership increase during the last year, bringing its enrollment to the highest point since its organization.

Special entertainment has been arranged for the convention delegates, including a banquet and dance on June 2 and an Ohio river boat ride on June 3.

One candidate was initiated at Saturday night's meeting and other business was transacted, including voting of a $15 contribution to the Mississippi flood relief fund.

Efforts for Extra Session of Congress Unsuccessful

Opinion Prevails It Would Mean Only More "Windjamming" by Senate

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, May 23 — The United States Senate evidently left a very bad taste in this country's mouth when congress adjourned last March.

It will be recalled that the senate wound up the session with a long filibuster.

One group of senators said, "Here are some bills we want to get acted on" and the other group said that the entire upper house of congress makes 'em tired.

THIS has been especially noticeable in the last few days, in connection with Sen. Jim Reed's campaign to force an extra session to vote Mississippi valley flood relief.

A good many members of the national legislature are still in Washington and the Missouri solon has been bombarding them with telegrams urging their support in a demand that the lawmakers be called together immediately, for adoption of a river control measure for the future.

I suppose he has similiarly bombarded other congressmen who went home when the sixty-ninth session ended, but the ones here are concentrated, and it's possible to observe their rollee vreite-possible to observe their collective reaction to Jim's appeal.

It isn't enthusiastic.

AN extra session to provide flood relief has been more or less talked about ever since levees began to pop, and a majority of the people's representatives who remain on the job have had time to communicate with their constituencies.

I've seen a sizeable stack of the messages they've received from their various bailiwicks and the general tenor of them is:

"Aw, what's the use! All an extra session of congress would amount to would be more windjamming by the senate. Blamed if we see how that would relieve anybody."

IF congress did meet in extra session, the senate couldn't possibly take up flood relief the first thing.

Ahead of everything, it would have to decide whether William S Vare of Pennsylvania and Frank L. Smith of Illinois are or are not senators The popular impression plainly is that it would take all summer.

The hunch I get is that there's no public clamor for an extra session to put Smith and Vare out of their misery.

PROSPECT YOUTH MAKES SCHOOL PROJECTS PAY

Rudolph Issler, 17, Owner of Large Herd of Shorthorn Cattle

Prospect, May 23—Rudolph Issler, 17, a member of the graduating class of Prospect High School, is said to be the first student in the state to carry a continuation project in vocational agriculture through a four-year course.

Issler took up Shorthorn cattle breeding as his project and turned his time into profit which will be approximately $4000 by next October.

In 1919, his father gave him a Shorthorn heifer and with this he joined the County Calf Club. Later his father purchased a herd of six and this gave Issler a start in the breeding business. At the time he entered high school his herd numbered 17 head. It has since increased to 50. He won many premiums at Ohio county and West Virginia fairs during the past two years.

YOU'LL LIKE TRADING AT SCHAFFNER'S

How far will you walk to save how much?

Experts in research work and selecting locations for the 5 and 10-cent stores and other chain propositions, say that a woman will walk across the street if a saving of even only five or ten cents is involved.

Men, taking them as they run, will walk across the street if a saving of 15 cents to 25 cents is involved.

Where the amount of money to be spent runs into a considerable sum (as in furniture, stoves and rugs) and the opportunity to save may mean many dollars, both men and women will "walk blocks."

We know something about the statement in this paragraph, as our customers come from all parts of Marion, as well as from out of town in all directions. They pass many other stores to take whatever steps may be necessary to go to Schaffner's. The savings they always find. They are well paid for the extra walk.

Land of Ill-Fated Church For Poor Sold by Sheriff

Another chapter was written in Fred Yenny's ill-fated plan to establish a "church for the poor" when the land where he hoped to build the sanctuary was sold by the sheriff, Saturday afternoon.

The site of the proposed church, two lots in Garfield Park addition, east of the city, was bid in by Yenny's son, Ernest W. Yenny, for $800, although it had been appraised at only $350.

As a result of the sale, the several hundred persons who contributed funds for the project are expected to have all of their money returned to them. The contributions amounted to about $500.

Spent $1,300, Claim

Yenny, according to his petition, spent more than $1,300 of his own money in an effort to bring his dream to fulfillment, and he will lose the entire amount.

The contributions made to the church fund during the time that Yenny personally carried on his solicitation ranged from $1 to $50.

Yenny conceived his 'church for the poor' plan more than seven years ago and began collecting subscriptions. On Sept. 20, 1910, he purchased the two lots in Garfield Park addition from Frank J. Berringer, the property being deeded to him in trust until the church project could be consummated.

Abandons Project

Yenny labored valiantly to complete the undertaking but finally gave it up after the work was started on the building and he lacked resources for going ahead. Last February he filed a petition in Common Pleas Court asking that his trusteeship be ended, the property sold and the funds distributed to the contributors.

The sheriff's report of the sale is to be submitted to Judge Scofield for confirmation next Monday. Following confirmation distribution of the $800 will take place.

The law firm of Mouser, Young & Mouser represents Yenny in the proceeding.

Mayor Gives Bail

Mayor John L. Duvall, above, of Indianapolis, Ind., and his brother-in-law, William C. Buser, city controller, have given bail after the filing of affidavits against them in the Marion County criminal court, charging conspiracy to commit a felony. The affidavits, filed by William H. Remey, prosecuting attorney, allege that Duvall and Buser had falsified sworn statements as to contributions to the Duvall campaign in 1925. The mayor is charged, also, with violating the corrupt practices act in promising offices in obtaining election support. Duvall says he is happy the long investigation of his election is ended. "Maybe I'll get a little peace now," he adds. "There is nothing to the charges."

a check on a Prospect bank where he had no funds. He pleaded guilty to this charge but not guilty to forgery, for which he also was indicted. It is not likely that he will be tried on the forgery indictment.

The first trial following the grand jury report will take place Tuesday, when Mike Dye, Detroit negro, will come before the petit jury on the charge of having been implicated in a shooting and attempted hold-up at the R. L. Goetting grocery on Lee-st.

Other Trials Set

Other trials will come in the following order:

May 26, James Henry; May 27, John Kurtz; May 31, Clyde Rogers, June 1, W. C. "Shorty" Longfellow; June 2, Orville Gibson; June 3, Paul Bird; June 7, Howard A. Stevens.

All in this list, with the exception of Stevens, were arrested in the recent round-up of men accused of staging numerous farm robberies in Marion County.

Lester Bird and Edward Shafer, two other alleged members of the gang, have pleaded guilty and are awaiting sentence.

All of the alleged farm robbers, with the exception of Lester Bird and Shafer were brought into court this morning while their attorneys presented a motion to have their indictments quashed. The indictments charge the men with "grand larceny and receiving and concealing stolen property." The attorneys maintained that the indictments are illegal because they list two separate and distinct charges.

Overrules Motion

Judge Scofield overruled the motion, holding that it was evidently the intent of the legislature in drafting the law relating to such indictments, to make possible the listing of more than one charge, so that if proof is lacking on one charge it may be possible to convict on the other.

The attorneys filed exceptions to the ruling. Counsel for the accused men joining in making the motion were Hector S. Young of this city, [illegible] and Roy Reed of Kenton and [illegible] of Lima.

Five members were listed on the church constitution of the date May 26, 1827, namely John Steely, Susan Steely, Chauncey Clark, Sephiah Van Meter and Reuben Drake. Elders Benjamin Cave and Thomas Snelson of Lauraville assisted the small group in organizing the church.

Primative Baptists affiliated with Rock Fork have assembled regularly for services on the fourth Saturday and following Sunday for services for 100 years. Present membership numbers 50. The structure housing the church was erected in 1867.

Saturday, 37 members presented the church with a wall clock as a remembrance of the 100th anniversary.

MRS. HARRIET E. CREASAP FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Charges Extreme Cruelty and Gross Neglect of Duty in Petition

Harriet E. Creasap is plaintiff in a suit for divorce and alimony filed in the Court of Common Pleas this morning against David B. Creasap, in which she charges her husband with extreme cruelty and gross neglect.

They were married, the petition states, in Monroe, Mich., on April 28, 1923, and have no children.

Mrs. Creasap says that her husband struck her frequently, one of the assaults occurring on last Christmas eve, when he knocked her down twice, she alleges. For six months, the wife states, Creasap clandestinely moved goods from their home, planning to abandon her, and that, he finally left three weeks ago and has not returned.

Creasap has not provided for her support, the wife says, although he has an income of about $200 monthly as a foreman at the Marion Steam Shovel Co. plant.

Mrs. Creasap says that she owns a property at 462 Silver-st and that her husband owns a Nash coupe and a property on Monroe-st.

In addition to asking for divorce and alimony, she asks that the court grant an injunction restraining Creasap from molesting her and also barring him from entrance to her Silver-st property.

TWO men, already drunk, presented a forged $25 check to the owner of a speakeasy to pay for bootleg liquor. The indignant bootlegger had them arrested. The court suspended sentence, presumably on the theory that the check was no worse than the whisky. Was there any interference with the bootlegger?

IF this country really wanted to stop bootlegging it could cripple it by making the purchase of liquor a felony. Respectable business men would no longer brag of their "reliable bootleggers" if those gentlemen had power to send them to jail.

To break the law would mean giving your bootlegger the price of his whisky at first and of his blackmail later.

But this country does not intend to make prohibition real. Make purchase of whisky a felony and what would congressmen do? They would not dare buy and be prosecuted or blackmailed.

SOME in the south want prohibition "to keep liquor from negroes."

Corporation owners in the north want it "because without whisky no strikes can amount to much, and in a strike we can shut off the whisky supplies."

Farmers approve prohibition "to keep whisky from farm hands."

Nobody wants the kind of prohibition that will keep HIM from getting whisky.

DEPARTING MINISTERS ARE HONORED BY CLUB

Rotarians Present Reverends Swan and Smiley with Traveling Bags

The Rotary Club luncheon at Hotel Harding at noon today took on the nature of a farewell party when Rev. Raymond W. Smiley, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church and Rev. Alfred W. Swan, pastor of the Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church, both of whom will leave the city in the near future, were presented with leather traveling bags by the club.

The presentation address was made by Jesse Mason, president of the club. Reverend Smiley will leave in two weeks to become pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church at Steubenville and Reverend Swan will leave this week for Greely, Colo., where he has accepted the position as pastor of the Presbyterian church there.

Mr. Mason in presenting the bags, paid a tribute to the two men for their cooperation in the club and said that while the bags were empty of material goods, each was filled with the "love and friendship of the best men in the city of Marion."

R. T. Hill, wholesale grocer of Delaware, who outlined the birth, growth and development of the grocery business, was a speaker at the meeting.

A letter expressing the appreciation of the organization for the co-operation of the club given during the recent convention was received by the club from officers of the Marion County Federation of Woman's clubs. The letter was read at the luncheon today.

as badly damaged by the souvenir hunters as he had feared.

Once he was sure that his "companion" in the flight was all right Lindbergh was driven to the presidential palace, where President Doumergue decortaed him with the ribbon and cross of the knight of the Legion of Honor, one of the highest honors that France can bestow upon a foreigner.

The ceremonies at the Elysee Palace were held in one of the great salons of the palace, and Lindbergh was flanked by Ambassador Herrick and Counsellor Whitehouse when he stepped before the president to have the ribbon of the Legion of Honor pinned on his left breast.

"This is a small token of French esteem and a symbol of our admiration for your bravery and achievement, and this is an effort to reward you," said President Doumergue.

"I want you to take a message to your mother for me. Tell her she has a wonderful son, who has won the hearts of all the French people. Tell her of their profound admiration for his bravery."

Lindbergh blushed, the blush of a very badly-embarrased young man. He stammered and his throat seemed dry, and perhaps he was even a little afraid of this which was apparently more of an ordeal to him than his ocean flight.

"Thank you very much, I'll be glad to be deliver this message," gasped Lindbergh.

The crowds about the American embassy hoping to catch a glimpse of "Charlot" are never ending, and everywhere he stirs this American youth hears cries of "Charlot-vive Amerique." The French admiration has been stirred by this cry of "Charlot," for that was the cry of admiration that went up when their own "Charlot" Nungesser took off on his fateful attempt at the feat which Lindbergh has accomplished.

Remembers Mothers

It has been well observed here too that Lindbergh's first thoughts, once he was refreshed by sleep after his exhausting flight, were of two mothers, his own and Captain Nungesser's, almost as soon as he awoke yesterday afternoon. Lindbergh suggested a "hop" to London so he could telephone his mother and his enthusiasm was great when he learned that arrangements had been made for him to telephone his mother from Paris. After he had talked with his own mother his thoughts turned to the mother of Nungesser and he called on her and paid his respects to her and somehow stirred her hopes that perhaps her missing son might yet be found.

The French press today continued its eulogies of Lindbergh, the most important newspapers devoting almost entire front pages to his exploits.

Cables 150,000 Words

It is estimated that 150,000 words were cabled to America on the exploit of the youngster on Saturday night and Sunday, at a cost of $25,000.

Lindbergh has some engagements for today, including an official reception. He makes no pretense at hiding the fact that he is undergoing these official congratulations merely as a matter of courtesy and that they have no attraction for him. However, he is doing his own good-natured utmost to fulfill the position of a sort of American ambassador, but he clings pretty closely to the side of Ambassador Herrick and leans on him for support and advice as to what he should do and what he should not do.

It's all a puzzle to this boy who came to Paris with a few letters of introduction fearing that folk wouldn't know him, and found all Paris, all France and all the world shouting his name and hailing him as a great hero.

Can't "See" Stage

Once he is able to have his own way, Lindbergh wants to "look around." His plans for the future are indefinite, he doesn't know when he will sail for home, but he does know that he will sail home and not fly.

While he is being flooded with cables of congratulations and offers of vaudeville and motion picture engagements, his mind has not yet fixed [illegible] future. The vaudeville and motion picture offers don't seem to [illegible]

SECOND TRIAL

Bystrom Case Scheduled For Putnam County Court June 10

Defiance, May 23—Arthur Bystrom, Point Place, O., will go on trial for the second time June 10, for robbing the Merchants' National Bank of $167,000 last November, Prosecutor Pollock announced today, after returning from Putnam County, where the second trial will be held.

Change of venue was allowed because of the high feeling that exists against Bystrom in Defiance County.

The jury which heard the first trial disagreed when a score of Pelee Islanders testified that Bystrom's liquor boat was laid up there at there at the time of the robbery.

CANTON GRAND JURORS HEAR STREITENBERGER

Much Depends on How Convicted Slayer Impresses Probers with Story

Canton May 23—The Stark County grand jury today was to weigh the worth of a story given last week by Floyd Streitenberger, ex-Canton detective, convicted of complicity in the Don Mellett slaying here last July, which implicates in the crime two men, both officers of high rank on the Canton police force at the time of the murder.

Streitenberger and his wife, Kate, were scheduled to appear before the grand jury this morning. It remained to be seen whether each would tell the same story. In testifying at her husband's trial, Mrs. Streitenberger told a story, which, had it been substantiated, might have saved him from the life sentence he received. It was generally believed she would tell this same story to the grand jury today. In the meantime, the fate of Louis Mazer, third man indicted in connection with the Mellett assassination, and state's star witness during the Streitenberger trial hangs in the balance. The grand jury will have to determine whether Mazer's or Streitenberger's story is the more logical. Much depended upon how the grand jury members were impressed by Streitenberger. If he stuck to a straightforward story, as was generally believed, the indictments would almost certainly be handed down; if he didn't, the members might become confused and then chances for indictment would be poor.

cled to start. It had been expected, however, that Mr. Collings would remain until June 1 to co-operate unofficially with the enforcement authorities.

Entire Situation Changed

Issuance of the modification order last week appears to have changed the entire situation. The seven inspectors appointed to serve during the clean-up campaign in Marion County are still on duty but today seemed to be almost completely in the dark regarding the program for the next few weeks.

It was indicated, however, that practically no hand picking will be required in fields in this county farmers generally will be permitted to proceed with their work without interference.

Mr. Collings will leave here tonight to visit several counties to the east on special work for Ohio State University and after attending the livestock exhibit at the Wooster experiment station Friday will return here Saturday to attend a meeting of Smith-Hughes teachers of the county schools. That conference will wind up his activities in Marion County.

No Danger of Friction

The clean-up campaign plans will not be completely abandoned in Marion County but will be so small in extent that all danger of friction with land owners will be practically eliminated, officials say.

Farmers who have completed clean-up work in their fields or who expect to complete it as soon as possible, will be paid the acreage allowance provided in the regulations, Director Worthly announces.

Although this allowance is fixed at $2 an acre, there is possibility of a higher rate being paid. At a meeting of representatives of the O. S. U. college of agriculture held in Columbus Saturday, a resolution was adopted recommending that the funds available for this purpose be pro-rated and that the farmers be paid on that basis even though it might figure higher than $2 an acre.

One hundred per cent clean-up will not be required in granting this allowance, as long as the farmers are able to show that they did the work as thoroughly as possible, officials state. The payments will be made, it is said, in cases where the clean-up is regarded as "satisfactory."

After all, old Christopher Columbus wasn't so much!

If the big thrill of a summer vacation is in the planning of it, as we are told, Mr. Coolidge must be experiencing the thrill of his life this year.

If we get the very proper attitude of Governor Al. Smith, a discussion of religion in a political campaign is in one respect like a lallapalooza in a game of poker; it should be pulled off but once.

To us, a war game looks a lot like a motion-picture scrap between the hero and the villain in which the director always decided which gets the drop on the other.

We are inclined to judge about everything by comparison. Perhaps, were old Noah with us today he wouldn't consider the Mississippi flood, awful as it is, as more than a spring freshet.

In remarking that, "when the marines get through disarming the Nicaraguans perhaps they will go to Chicago," the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times manifestly overlooks the inhibition against hitting below the belt.

It has been urged repeatedly that the automobile has led to more marital troubles than any other agency, but, if so, our guess is that the typewriter has run it a close second.

Let's be fair. Simply because Lindbergh's first request was for a drink, it must not be assumed than that was the object of his 3,600-mile trip to France, even though he did show amazing speed in making both.

The national income of the United States was $78,649,000,000 in 1926 against $77.-$78,000,000, the year before. If we continue at this rate we are liable to develop into some really big country.

When criminals fall out, the course of justice usually is served. Streitenberger has talked, and the higher-ups in the Canton murder at last may be brought to pay the penalties of their crimes.

When the punctuation of the Lord's prayer becomes a matter for serious controversy, it looks to a man on the fence that those thus engaged are somewhat more interested in punctuation than in the message of the Lord.

We were told in advance about the gowns Pola Negri would wear at a funeral, but here she has been married over a week and we haven't had the slightest hint how she was gowned to become a princess. It isn't giving the girls a square deal.

It is worth noting that few lamentations have appeared in print over the arrest of the Boston reporter charged with stealing the Al. Smith letter in reply to C. C. Marshall. There are some bits of so-called journalistic enterprise beyond the pale of decency as well as newspaper ethics, and the Smith letter theft was one of them.

"Freedom of the Press."

Today, May 23, is the 175th anniversary of the death of William Bradford, the first printer in New York and Philadelphia, for fifty years the public printer of New York and New Jersey and the publisher of the first Bible printed in America.

But Bradford's chief claim to distinction in the annals of history is that he was the first man in any country to demand the freedom of the press.

Bradford came to the New world with William Penn. Though but nineteen at the time, he was an expert printer, having been trained under Andrew Soule, of London, the foremost printer and publisher of his time. Looking over the ground, he returned to London, perfected his plans, married Soule's daughter and coming for a second time to the New world opened a printing shop in Philadelphia, having brought over a little old printing press with him.

When the charter of Pennsylvania was signed, Bradford printed it, and in consequence was summoned before the governor and his council. His offense in acting without the orders of the governing powers was held a serious one.

Bradford's defense was that he had a right to print what came to him, holding that "the press must be free," and that the art of printing should be encouraged, not suppressed. He contended that the people had a right to know their privileges and the laws under which they had to live, and he made the claim that "printing is the manufacture of the nation."

This was the seed from which grew the "freedom of the press" which today is enjoyed in all lands where popular government exists. The governor refused to subscribe to Bradford's view, but the latter lived to see his stand given popular recognition.

An Epochal Flight.

The marvelous transatlantic flight of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh stands not as an epoch in aeronautics alone, but as an event in world history as well. Such was the splendid courage, such the supreme daring, the young aviator displayed in the manner of his taking-off from New York that the whole world rejoiced when Paris flashed the news of his safe arrival there Saturday night, and today universal tribute is being paid to his skill as an aviator, to his ability as a navigator, to his apparent instinctive sense of direction. In a word, his qualities of mind are today recognized by the world as not a whit less worthy than his great qualities of heart. His splendid performance stands above and beyond any and all others in the annals of the air.

The far shorter distance between the extreme western coast of Africa and the easternmost coast of South America has been negotiated a number of times. Commander Franco, of Spain, made it two years ago. It was made this year by Commander de Pinedo, of Italy; the Portuguese flier, Major Sarmento Beires, and the Brizilian aviator, Commander Barros. The hope that it has also been made by Captain St. Roman has about been abandoned.

The north Atlantic record is far different. It has previously been crossed by a heavier-than-air machine but once. That was in 1919, when the British fliers, Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant Arthur Whitten Brown, flew from St. Johns, Newfoundland, in a Vickers-Vimy biplane, to Clifden, Ireland, a distance of 1,960 miles, in sixteen hours. A flight was made the same year—1919—across the Atlantic from Trepassy, British North America, to Lisbon, Portugal, with a stop at the Azores, by the United States naval seaplane, NC-4, the distance of 2,150 miles being covered in twenty-six hours and forty-five minutes, flying time. Two dirigibles also have flown across the North Atlantic. The British dirigible, R-34, made a round trip from East Fortune, Scotland, to New York and back in 1919, and the Los Angeles, then the Zeppelin, ZR-3, made the splendid flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, New Jersey, a distance of 5,060 times, in October of 1924. But flights of heavier-than-air machines and lighter-than-air machines can not fairly be compared unless it is in the matter of speed, in which the heavier-than-air machine takes all the honors.

Thus the flight of Lindbergh—unless it be that the two great French aces, Nungesser and Coli, reached this continent and have been unable to get into communication with the world—is to be compared only with the much shorter flight of our naval seaplane, which made a stop at the Azores, and that of the British fliers who traveled the shortest distance between North America and the Old world—a distance little over half that between New York and Paris. Splendid flights though they were, neither of these approach that of Lindbergh, who composedly hopped off alone into the fog of early Friday morning and, traveling at an average rate of 107½ miles an hour over the great circle, reached Paris in 33½ hours.

For months we had been reading about the preparations of other aviators to make the dash from New York to Paris. One attempt ended in disaster before the machine left the ground. Columns upon columns were run concerning the other two outfits preparing to make the attempt. Despite the fact that Lindbergh had figured in the news as the result of four parachute escapes from disabled machines, nobody seems to know him. Then came his spectacular trip from the Pacific coast, with a stop in St. Louis, on which he broke the cross-continent record. And then his "hop-off" with an induction compass about the size of a watch, a map, a few bars of chocolate, some sandwiches and two canteens of water. The daring of it simply amazed the world, but at the same time it won the world's heart.

Say Lindbergh was fortunate. Call him lucky. Even so, it required more than fortune and luck to follow his proposed route as he did and do better than maintain his schedule. No, he has demonstrated that the crossing of the Atlantic in a non-stop flight along a planned course can be made, and by so doing he has demonstrated the possibilities of the aeroplane as the fast ocean carried of the future. As such his fame surmounts that of all aviators present and past. Today he is the pride of America.

The Detroit sport writers say the Tigers up there need pitchers or something, and judging by their standing in the race it's not impossible that they need both.

The charm of a third party to some aspiring politicians is that in it a man of very limited ability appears far more conspicuous than he possibly could in either of the two regular old parties.

If half the effort devoted to talk about law observance were given to law observance, we have a sort of an idea that it would boost the batting average of the joy of living, and boost it amazingly.

Poems That Live.

THE TEARS OF HARLEQUIN.

To you he gave his laughter and his jest,
His words that of all words were merriest,
His glad, mad moments when the lights flared high
And his wild song outshrilled the plaudits' din.
For you that memory, but happier I—
I, who have known the tears of Harlequin,

Not mine those moments when the roses lay
Like red spilled wine on his triumphant way,
And shouts acclaimed him through the music's beat,
Above the voice of flute and violin.
But I have known his hour of sore defeat—
I—I have known the tears of Harlequin.

Light kisses and light words, they were not mine—
Poor perquisites of many a Columbine
Bought with his laughter, flattered by his jest;
But when despair broke through the painted grin,
His tortured face has fallen on my breast—
I—I have known the tears of Harlequin.

You weep for him, who look upon him dead,
That joy and jest and merriment are fled;
You weep for him, what time my eyes are dry,
Knowing what peace a weary soul may win
Stilled by too much masking—even I—
I, who have known the tears of Harlequin.

ON AND ON.

Baby Crying from Hunger.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

When a baby is fretful and cross there is something physically wrong with the thing. It isn't old enough to be mean. In this respect it differs from the father. If he is cross and disagreeable the only excuse he can offe. is that he is "worried."

If any infant is unhappy, crying and fretting, find out at once what is the matter. Nine times out of ten it has something to do with the feeding.

The most common factor of trouble is overfeeding. You know how miserable you feel if you have crowded your stomach with a lot of unneeded food. A frail youngster will suffer much more than you do.

But, on the other hand, the child may be crying from hunger. Unless enough milk, milk of good quality, is given, the infant suffers pangs of hunger. Once more, let me remind you that you feel and act cross and fretful if you don't get enough food and get it right away. Why should the youngster act otherwise?

The surest index of the childs favorable progress is steady gain in weight. The fact that there is no gain in a month's time need not in itself cause any alarm. When I speak of "steady gain" in weight I do not mean it must be exactly so many ounces a week. But if there should be no gain for two months, in an infant under a year old, I should be disturbed.

Stationary weight or decreasing weight, together with fretfulness, restlessness and frequent crying, should cause you to talk with your doctor. Especially if the baby has been good and sweet tempered, you should seek the cause if there is a sudden change in its manner.

If the milk is of good quality but deficient in quantity, there may be no stomach or bowel disturbance. Without any particular upset in health, there may be nothing wrong except the urge of hunger. If the milk is thin and watery, or otherwise defective in quality, there may be diarrhea. Green stools, filled with mucus and curds may be noted. Vomiting may be present.

If weaning is delayed, the breast milk may be lacking and the child hungry in consequence. The nursing period is prolonged and after trying hard to get enough milk, the poor baby gives up in disgust and begins to cry.

Of course, in such cases as I am describing there is but one thing to do. That is to increase the quantity of milk. It may be necessary to give milk by bottle in addition to the breast. In another case, if the baby is bottle fed, it may be that a change of milk will be required.

More milk and better milk: This is the remedy for the baby crying from hunger.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A. C. R. Q—Does sugar in the blood indicate diabetes?

A—Yes, one suffering with this condition should be under the care of a physician, as it requires careful attention.

J. F. R. Q—I am twenty-three years of age and have a slight goitre. My nose bleeds quite frequently and my face seems feverish at times. What would you advise?

A—Have your nose examined. You may have a growth of some kind in the nasal passage. This would be apt to cause symptoms such as you describe. A goiter should always have the attention of a physician who will outline proper treatment. Each case demands specific attention.—Copyright, 1927.

Editorial Comment.

RESPONSIBILITY OF OVERSEAS WRITERS.

The vigorous denial by Mr. Sisley Huddleston, the Christian Science Monitor's staff correspondent in Paris, of the reports that the failure of the French fliers to reach America had been the cause of an outbreak of anti-American feeling in the French capital is, we think, a real contribution to international good will.

For some reason, many American newspapers saw fit to fill their columns with reports from Paris of violent manifestations of hostility to the United States. The immediate and inevitable result was the instant development of a feeling of resentment toward France in America. Newspaper editorials no less than personal utterances of the man in the street aided in fanning the flames thus started. The publication by the state department of a cable from Ambassador Herrick seemed to give official authentication to the reports of hostility now shown to have been purely unfounded. It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that had the newspapers, or press gathering organizations most active in this campaign, been half as zealous to get the facts as they were to print the provocative rumors, the tempest now happily stilled need never to have been aroused.

It should be the study of American newspapers to enforce upon their foreign correspondents recognition of the fact that they fill positions of the utmost dignity and importance, and that the information they send for publication in the United States may be made the basis for serious international antagonisms, or on the other hand may serve to maintain good feeling between the United States and the nations of Europe. The endeavor to interpret the people of the country to which he is accredited in their best light to the readers of his newspaper should be the ceaseless effort of the correspondent in a foreign land. He should regard himself as an unofficial diplomatist, and just in proportion as the corps of overseas writers do recognize the highly influential nature of their employment, so will its conditions be made for them more dignified and better worthy of the endeavors of men of the highest attainments—Christian Science Monitor.

THE FATAL HANDSHAKE.

Eugene Tunney, champion heavyweight boxer of the world, has just delivered himself of an utterance which may get some attention from many men outside of the sporting world. He declared that the does not want a position in the world which demands constant handshaking with the public. He said that too much handshaking will break down the strongest constitution, and his figures that is what killed President Harding and shortened the life of President Roosevelt.

There is no doubt that Tunney's observation contains more than a grain of truth. Shaking hands with thousands of people every day is a practice which surely has its element of danger to any one who indulges it. Not to speak of the possibility of the transfer of disease germs of one kind or another from any one of a thousand hands grasped by the president, the physical exertion involved in the exercise is more than the average man can withstand.

It is said that President Coolidge has eliminated much of the handshaking which used to be the popular pastime at the White House. Some folks may blame his cold Yankee nature for this ruling, but perhaps it is merely a measure of self-protection against over-exertion.

Tunney advises public men in all stations to abolish the popular handshaking stunt and they will live longer. The handshake by public men is, after all, more of a habit than anything else, and if the public did not expect such a manifestation visitors at the White House and other public places would be just as well satisfied without it.—Bloomington Pantagraph.

The Way of the World.

"Old Charley," a convict in an Illinois state prison, celebrated his ninety-eighth birthday last week. Once he was offered a parole, but he refused freedom. He said he was too old to face the world. He was not too old to face the world. Nobody is—but he had lost his spirit. Age is not so serious as the loss of self-assurance.

There is such a thing as having self-assurance without being conceited. Nobody likes a conceited man. The man who has self-assurance without conceit knows his own power, believes in it, believes in his capacity for success—but he doesn't keep telling everybody about it. In Paris, the Gay.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

Paris, May 22—The great dressmaking salons are hidden behind barn doored, sagging, warehouse-looking buildings sprouting chimneys. The bleakness gives no evidence of the animation beyond. One mounts castlelike stone steps to high-vaulted rooms hung with brocade and plush and showers of crystal.

There seems to be acres of highly-polished parquet, hugh deep-cushioned divans crested with waves of pillows, tabourets laden with cordials and cigarets and aromatic incense burners and bizarre vases bulging with the rarest of flowers.

It is this seductive atmosphere that American husbands sit flecking pearls of sweat from perspiring foreheads wondering if there will be enough left of the traveler's checks for boat-fare home. Minnie Smith feels much like a straying heroine from a Bertha M. Clay.

Beauteous saleswomen swarm about her offering her orchid-hued cigarets and purple-tipped matches. Silken-voiced compliments are purred in her ear. She begins to wonder why such a gorgeous creature as herself has remained in Dobb Falls so long.

There appears to be a dozen saleswomen to each customer, all chirping like birds in an aviary. Madam is so chic, Madam is so jolt and so on ad nauseum. Flattery becomes a facile device to make Milady buy twelve frocks when she merely came in to look.

Then there are those glorified carpet-kissing floor-walkers—habited like the handsomest of Broadway juveniles. They are the sort who wear ties to match their eyes and the average husband feels like a jaundiced old has-been in their presence.

The parade of the mannikins offers the beauty and color of a smart musical revue. With mincing steps and detached manner they stroll about to pierouette before this customer and that. They are calm-cerebral, waxen creatures who never smile, but they are the reasons for so many husbands visiting the dressmaking parlors. And don't be silly.

In a glove shop a strikingly beautiful brunet waited on me. I ordered the trifling purchase sent to my hotel. "My father works at that hotel," she said. "He is a porter." That was a simple confession one would not likely hear from the lips of a beautiful American sales girl.

The hawkers of filthy, obscene Parisian postcards are, sad to say, mostly Americans. A group of them hang around the entrances of the Hotel Continental. Nearly all stores and shops in Paris are closed from 12 o'clock noon until 2. Experienced bargain drivers make purchases immediately after the afternoon opening. It is a bit of psychology. Views of Those in Public Eye.

COLONEL LEONARD P. AYRES.

Leonard Porter Ayres was born at Niantic, Connecticut, September 15, 1879. During the World war he served as colonel and chief statistics officer of the United States army, later acting on the American commission to negotiate peace. Colonel Ayres is the author of a number of books dealing with such subjects as education, business prospects, building construction, and the World war. He has been among the leading forecasters of business conditions for a number of years.

This is the way Colonel Ayres explains the buoyancy in railroad and industrial stocks:

"This is a time of prosperity for the efficient and strong, and one of increasing difficulties for those that are less successful in reducing their costs of production, or that are handicapped by inadequacy of capital.

"The same economic conditions that are creating difficulties for large numbers of manufacturing and mercantile firms are greatly benefiting the railroads and the utilities. These companies sell services instead of goods. The activity of general business brings traffic to the railroads in great volume, and increases the demands for power from the electric companies.

"In the case of the railroads and of most utilities these exceptional demands do not result in bringing new competitors into the field. The declining commodity prices tend to reduce the costs of coal and equipment but the rates that the companies charge for their service remain at the relatively high levels at which they were fixed by the commerce and service commissions when costs were higher. The influences of the prevailing fundamental economic conditions greatly favor the railroads and the utilities, and this is reflected in the buoyant action of their securities of the stock exchanges."

'tudents' Spirit and Morale Factors in Galion School Year Success

BY MIRIAM SAYRE
Marion Star Correspondent

...ALION, May 23—The school ...ear of 1926-27 has been one ...ual success and favorable ...pment, according to a re... statement made by Supt. R. ...rad, who completes his third ...of work in this city, this ...

...ough no very remarkable ...ements have been noted, the ...al spirit and morale of the ... body has improved and the ...asic standard has reached an ...ngly high work. Much ... for the increased interest is ...to the Parent-Teacher's as... ...ons who are sponsoring ... worthwhile activities for the school students and fostering an interest in academic affairs.

1,511 Enrolled

During the year the city schools have had an enrollment of 1,511 including 291 students of the three high school classes and 391 of the Junior high. An increase is expected during the coming year as 42 additional students have already enrolled for high school work and the Polk township rural schools will bring 125 more grade pupils into Galion. For the first time in local school history the plan of a three year high school program preceded by a Junior high course of similar length has been tried with apparent success. Crowded conditions in the senior high building necessitated the removal of the freshmen to the junior high building and the same arrangementst are being made for next year's work.

Although elementary school activities play an important part in the yearly events most of the interest is centered in the enterprises of the high school group, and the calendar for the year has been filled with affairs of note. The work in practically every department has been above average and although handicapped in many ways the students have accomplished much.

Eaton Again Coach

The usual program of athletics, which probably is the outstanding extra-curricular activity, was a decided disappointment as far as winning of games was concerned, but the manner in which the participants in the varous sports, fought in spite of handicaps, is an achievement in itself. Coach "Dave" Eaton will again direct the teams next year and with a number of letter men back in the games, prospects are far from gloomy.

What is to be done with the athletic program for the coming season is a much discussed topic. Lack of funds prevented the carrying on of an extensive physical education couse on that the huge gymnasium has been idle and students have been denied the privileges of the usual gymnasium routine. Recent communications from the state department are to the effect that unless the athletic course is again offered, Galion school can be classed as only a second rate institution.

Organizations Active

Various organizations including clubs both social and departmental have passed an eventful season. Among the most prominent listed are the Hi-Y and Girl Reserves, which have sponsored many social affairs and chapel programs, the Latin club, Chess and Checkers group and the Amateur Radio Association. Although membership in each society is limited the work inspires students and is a great aid to better school spirit.

Literary and journalistic activities have centered in the high school publications, the "Lantern" semi-monthly news sheet, the "High School Echo" the organ of literary enterprise and the annual senior book "The Spy." Keeping constantly abreast with student opinion these publications are of great benefit and afford their youthful managers much valuable experience.

In music, R. R. Ehrhart has been an efficient supervisor and has helped the students acquire a taste for the best in that line of endeavor. A band orchestra and string quartet are the instrumental groups representing this department and the chorus of 175 voices has won renown in the presentation of several musical programs including the much discussed Christmas cantata, "Chimes of the Holy Night."

Manufacturers Assist

The most extensive vocational course ever offered was carried out effectively and much progress made in manual training and shop work. Galion manufacturers assisted in furnishing the machine room and the students of that department are forging rapidly ahead under the direction of D. E. Schaefer.

Mrs. Loren E. Beck has had charge of the dramatic work and besides the regular private work in expression has placed the current plays, "Only Thirty-Eight" given by the Juniors, and "The Show Off," Senior class play as among the best of recent presentations.

Debate has been coached by Miss Louise John and although the work was not exceptional a strong foundation has been laid and with a number of veteran orators back great things are expected.

Would Better Library

The school as usual has sponsored a city lyceum course which met with success and started a campaign for a well equipped library. At present the library has a fairly large supply of good reference books and subscribes regularly for 12 leading periodicals.

Closely associated with the everyday life of the school are the chapel periods which held several times each week, have brought before the classes many noted speakers, entertaining programs of home talent and have given the students a chance of acquiring the valuable experience of public appearances.

Galion high school with its class rooms and laboratories, its faculty and student body, supported by loyal alumni and town population, will this week ring down the curtain at the close of an eventful year and prepare to clear the stage for the assured success of the future.

GALION SCHOOL SENIOR CLASS HEARS SERMON

Rev. W. O. Montague Delivers Forceful Address Before Body of Students

Galion, May 23—Using a Shakespeare quotation as a keynote, Rev. W. O. Montague delivered a forceful sermon "Philosophy for Life," to the Galion High School senior class last night in the school auditorium. Thoughts of encouragement, words of congratulation for what had been accomplished and hopes for continued success were expressed in the opening remarks. A review of the good things that school days had brought and a cheerful outlook on the future comprised the main theme of Rev. Montague's baccalaureate address. Stressing the fact that the greatest need of the generation is an available God, the United Brethren minister clearly outlined the opportunities and possibilities of the youth of today.

The baccalaureate services were marked with simplicity throughout and were carried out with impressive dignity, Mrs. J. A. Steele organist and the United Brethren choir supplied the music which consisted of the processional and recessional and an anthem, "Angels of Jesus." Eighth District Postal Workers Hold Semi-Annual Meeting in Galion School

Clever Program Is Presented at Thirteenth Convention; Hugh Diamond, Scotch Comedian and Speaker, Gives Main Address; Over 200 Attend

Galion, May 23—The thirteenth semi-annual convention of the Associated Postal Employes from the Eighth Congressional District was held at the high school building Saturday night when the members of the Galion postal force were hosts to over 200 guests.

A reception committee met the visitors, distributed gayly-colored paper hats and provided a real welcome. At 7 o'clock a five-course dinner was served by the Dorcas Society of the First Reformed Church, in the gymnasium, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Tracht's orchestra provided music during the banquet hour and Herman Hoard furnished special solo numbers.

Entertaining Program

An interesting program in the auditrium followed. Homer Simpson of the local organization presided. A group of songs by a male quartet composed of J. L. Ness, C. C. Ness, R. R. Ehrhart, F. T. Wilson with Kenneth Pfeiffer as pianist, opened the entertainment and were several times encored. The official address of welcome was delivered by John E. Woodward, the assistant postmaster of the Galion office, and the response was given by H. N. Geddis, Caledonia, district president. Another original plan was used in the welcoming events when two Galionites, in ape costumes, recited a clever poem. Although the identity of the two performers was not revealed this unusual stunt was the hit of the session.

Mrs. R. M. Pounder and Theodore Schaefer presented two organ and piano numbers, "Rhapsody" by Demarest and "Romance in D," Hayes, and Margaret Dunn, one of the city's favorite young dancers, interpreted a Russian toe dance. A whistling duet was offered by Margaret and Dorothy Moore, who had as assisting accompanists Pauline Young, pianist, and Burnell Tennant, violinist. Doris Cook and Miriam Sayre gave humorous readings.

As the principal speaker and entertainer, Hugh Diamond, well known Scotch humorist, was presented and gave an address which alternating serious and frivolous episodes was met with the usual enthusiasm.

Business Session Held

Following the program the meeting was turned over to officers, H. N. Geddis, Caledonia, president; D. E. Laughbaum, Galion, vice president, and F. J. Wieland, Mt. Gilead, secretary and treasurer, who conducted a brief business session. At this time plans were completed for the next meeting which will be held in Bucyrus in the fall and will be devoted to business procedure, election of officers and plans for another year's work.

For souvenirs of the occasion complete programs of the affair were given. Besides photos of officials and local committeemen facts concerning Galion as an industrial center were given in detail.

Kenton, May 23—When arraigned before Judge Hamilton E. Hoge in the Hardin county court of common pleas here, Thomas Burchell and John Sparks, west of Kenton, entered pleas of not guilty to grand jury indictments charging burglary in connection with the Detrick Clothing store robbery at Ada recently, and are being held under $2,000 bond each for hearing.

Trial date has not as yet been set by Judge Hoge. New Spring suits and wearing apparel valued at approximately $1,500 comprised the loot in the robbery.

Two others, Thomas Pennington and Charles Thompson, indicted by the special grand jury session in connection with the robbery, are still at large.

Clarence Pfeiffer, farmer, also indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery, also entered a plea of not guilty and is being held under $300 bond for trial.

Four Sentenced

Light sentences and a severe lecture by Judge Hoge were metted out to four young men who pleaded guilty to charges of burglary and larceny. Lawrence "Pete" Nichols and Harold Williams, charged with having broken into four Kenton business places several days ago, pleaded guilty and each was given 60 days in the Dayton workhouse.

Woots Whitaker received 10 days and and Robert Isom was given 30 days in the Hardin County jail when they pleaded guilty to charges of larceny. The two were arrested in connection with the theft of gasoline from a tractor on the Hindman farm, west of here. His Piles Gone In Just Five Days

Almost A Miracle, He Tells His Friends

He suffered intense agony from piles for years. The itching—the burning—the terrible straining almost drove him crazy.

He went to his druggist and bought a tube of Pile-Foe because he had read an ad that guaranteed it to "end all pile distress, agony, itching and burning in 5 days or money back."

It cost him a dollar, but as he tells his friends when boosting Pile-Foe, "It was worth a thousands. It stopped all misery as if by magic. It was all O. K. in five days. It was almost a miracle how speedily they vanished."

Pile-Foe is a physician's prescription that Henney & Cooper and druggists everywhere rigidly guarantee.—Adv.

A MARION NURSE HIGHLY INDORSES THE NEW KONJOLA

She Tells How Celebrated Medicine Ended Years of Stomach Trouble.

Konjola has received the most startling voluntary testimonials ever written by Marion people. In every section of the city, and nearby towns, men and women are describing the work of this new medicine after it has delivered them from their health troubles, such as disordered stomach, liver, kidneys or rheumatic pains.

MRS. EVA TRICKEY

Just a few days ago, Mrs. Eva Trickey, a practising nurse, address 707 E. Center-st, Marion, made the following statement about Konjola in her report to the Konjola Man at the Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 S. Main-st, this city, who is interviewing throngs of people daily and explaining Konjola.

"This is the first medicine that actually ended my stomach troubles," said Mrs. Trickey, "and I know it is only right to indorse such a remedy to others who suffer.

"I had my first attack of stomach trouble ten years ago. In recent years my case grew worse. Invariably, after every meal, quantities of gas would form, crowding my chest and heart. A feeling like a heavy rock appeared in my stomach, then shortness of breath. Sharp pains centered around my heart muscles. These attacks lasted for days at a time and kept growing more severe. At last I was subject to incessant vomiting. Nothing I ate would digest. I was dreadfully nervous at all times.

"I tried special dieting for weeks at a time, took special treatments and had the best attention, but nothing would stop my troubles. I heard of this much talked about medicine, the new Konjola. I made a trial of it, and it proved beyond a shadow of a doubt to be exactly what I needed. I am entirely free of stomach troubles now. My digestion is perfect and I eat what I want. The heart flutterings, heavy feeling in my stomach and shortness of breath are all things of the past. I completed my course of Konjola and waited a few weeks to see if my old haunts would return, but I have never suffered since. This is the first time I can say I am entirely out of misery in years, and I am strongly recommending this Konjola because I know what the medicine will do."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump Pharmacy (Stump & Sams), 121 S. Main-st, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Adv.

FARMER WOMAN IN OKLAHOMA

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Because It Gave Her Health and Strength

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing.

They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a houseful of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and tired.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 387, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health?

...turned back to the road and ...ed their toil upward through ... The scenery was now becom...d. The air was redolent of ...and they made their way be...ls of fragrant broom, mastick ...zizypnus; arbor vite and iron wood, while the fragile scent of lotus tinted the air with a delicious, luring smell. Larry had never seen anything so vividly colorful.

After a time they left the main highway and turned into a lesser thoroughfare and now they traversed a veritable bower of beauty. Gigantic bushes of Spanish broom, ruddy clusters of pimpernel and snowy white lady's smock hemmed them in on either side, liberally interspersed with deep, golden sprigs of sweet musk, balsam, tufted horseshoe vetch and queenly, delicate asphodel. Crane's bill and tiny bird's-eye, blue and pink larkspur and hardy thyme; ox-eye and mignonette, all were mingled here bathed in the mellow glow of the hot, slanting sun.

As the way became steeper the floral scenery grew more magnificent and now there was added the camomile daisies, purple convolvulvi; mild, scentless mustard and dainty harebells, with the deeper shades of blue and purple iris here and there; there were red adonis, myrtle and jessamine, a literal fairyland for flower lovers.

"'Tis a pity that where so much beauty lies intrigue should be so rampant," Larry said, and Abdesselam turned to answer. But before he could speak a voice reached them, a droning sing-song voice that was suggestive of the minaret muezzins.

"Allah akbar! Allah akbar! God is great, God is great. There is no God but God and Mohammed is his prophet. Come to prayer. Allah akbar! There is no God but God."

Startled, they looked about them then Omar swiftly prostrated himself in the road, Larry following his lead. It was the call to the aser, the afternoon prayer.

As the prayer ended Larry gazed about him and saw a small hut, the habitation of a saint, or holy man, almost hidden by towering rocks. Now watching the door of the squalid domicile, he saw a burly man emerge. Evidently he had been inside to prayer. By the cut of the man's jib Larry set him down on the instant as a Berber and probably one who was unattached, owing allegiance to no tribe. The man's garish dress indicated that he might be a hill outlaw. The fellow's eyes met Larry's and he spoke.

"I," he said, his voice heavy and swaggering, "am Beni Ahmed. Who, in the name of Allah, are you?"

"I am Abdesselam el-Hadj," Omar said, before Larry could speak, "and my companion is the one the mountain tribes have heard was coming—Youssef el-Habbassi, the wizard."

Beni Ahmed's thick lips curled and he jangled his sword.

"A wizard, eh? It is in my mind that 'twere better to depend on cold steel to carve out the happenings of the future than to depend on a magician to reveal what is in store. How think you, Abdesselam el-Hadj?"

Larry felt Omar's elbow nudge him gently.

"I am not one who may say, Beni Ahmed. Truly, I have seen this wizard do marvelous things. He did read for me an event of the past, which of a surety he could have had no knowledge of, yet did he make it glow as a picture on the face of a burnished lake; and I saw that which I knew to be the truth."

"Then, let us test the wizard," said Beni Ahmed. "Read my future for me, Father of Wisdom, and say what you see written there?"

Larry damned his companion sincerely, if silently, for creating this trap—unintentional, of course, but nevertheless a trap. Had it been a simple feat of legerdemain he would have fallen in with the idea willingly, but this thing of reading a man's future was something else again, especially since the fellow seemed an outlaw, and in all likelihood a tool of the man whose price was highest in the bidding for his services.

But there was nothing for it save to play the part Omar had assigned to him, so boldly, he looked into the face of Beni Ahmed, then, staring solemnly he centered his eyes on the other's. After a minute of this Beni Ahmed shifted restlessly.

"Well," he roared gruffly, "what halts your tongue? Can not you see through my thick skull and read what is written there?"

"Nay, Beni Ahmed," Larry answered, forced to speak, his mind racing for an idea, "it is not that I fail to read what is written, but it is not in my heart to tell you what I read."

Despite his bold bearing and his scoffing manner, Beni Ahmed's face was briefly distorted by an uneasy twist of his features. He asked:

"You find that which you do not like. Is that it?"

Larry bowed.

"Then, tell it, that I may know. He who knows what awaits ahead is armed against all evils, is he not? Speak, wizard, and tell me if this you see is anything that my long sword will not carve from my path."

Larry now gazed solemnly at Beni again and spoke in a heavy, sonorous voice:

"I see, Beni Ahmed, that on the third night from this you shall die by a hand unknown to you at this hour. Did I not say I had not the heart to read?"

The other's face paled on the instant, then his bold eyes flared.

"Bah, wizard; you are either a great liar or a bad guesser. On the third night from this I shall be with one who stands high in the Group. I shall be in a city of walls. You cannot have foreseen my future."

Larry knew he could do nothing less now than carry through to a finish what he had started.

"Nevertheless, it is written, Beni Ahmed."

With never a word the Berber drew his long, curved sword and it flashed about his head, dropping in an arc that reflected the slanting sunbeams and under his heavy, chopping stroke the air seemed to shiver.

"Now," said the Berber heavily, "I shall be alone on the third night save for the agents I go to meet. Since they seek my services, and at a high price, it is folly to think any one of them would kill me unaware to myself. Bah! It is in my mind that you are either a fool or a liar. My sword is my protector."

"Nothing under Allah shall avert your fate, Beni Ahmed," Larry said, his voice calm.

They heard the saint whining dolefully and turned to see him rolling his eyes, and praying that the harsh talk before his domicile might be forgiven, since he had no hand in it.

"Allah avert the evil that will come on my head for this day's sorrow," he said. "Oh, Wizard, why did you read? Sorcerer, be-gone."

"It was written," Larry said once more voicing the time-worn platitude of the country. Then he calmly turned his back on the Berber outlaw. The latter at once strode off through the shrubbery and Omar plucked at Larry's arm.

"We must go" he said, "for the hour grows late and we still have far to travel."

Nature Doesn't Punish Her Any Longer

Menstruation is Nature — but menstrual pain is NOT natural, and not necessary. Science has conquered the painful part. In a harmless — yes, healthful — little tablet called midol.

Midol is a more remarkable means of relieving such pain than even a habit-forming drug. It acts directly on the organs affected by menstruation, and relief comes in five to seven minutes.

Don't have another day of forced quiet, of pain, low spirits or even discomfort! Midol is effective twelve hours or more. Yet it does not depress the heart, is not narcotic, and is utterly harmless. All druggists, 50 cents, in this aluminum box that fits the smallest purse.

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

MARY AND ELEANOR

THAT Eleanor Lincoln was deeply chagrined by her ingenious plan to have Noel Veritzen as a daily luncheon guest, I saw, although she did not let the smile fade from her face. But trust one woman to read the face of another. I knew a sure method of bringing her back to good humor, however, and I used it promptly, though I knew that it meant distinct displeasure on Dicky's part. But the balances on my husband's side of our account of mutual irritation were still way down, and I had no compunctions for the little farewell speech I made to our young hostess.

"There is one luncheon you surely mustn't forget," I told her when we had climbed into the car and I, leaning from the seat, was again saying good-by. "That is the one at which I have planned you shall meet Mr. Philip Veritzen. When I return from the city after seeing him, I shall come to see you and tell you about it."

The smile which mechanically had been wreathing her lips became genuine—was mirrored in her eyes.

"That is awfully sweet of you," she said. "Indeed I shan't forget. I'm simply crazy to meet that man."

Dicky put his hand upon the gear shift, and I released Miss Lincoln's fingers abruptly. The car shot forward and the next minute we were out in the road, headed for home.

"Perhaps she won't be quite so crazy when she meets Mr. Veritzen," Mary commented tartly. "He sure can hand out the icy mitt if he thinks anybody's trying to work him for anything."

I smiled to myself but was careful to let Dicky's young niece see no hint of my amusement. There was a vindictiveness in her tone of whose source I knew that she herself was unconscious. But I mentally commented that the young and imperious chatelaine of The Larches would have her work cut out for her if she attempted to annex Noel Veritzen's affections. Mary might have no intention of acquiring him as a permanent possession, but she surely did not intend to let any other young woman have him.

Dicky did not speak once on the way home, and I knew that he was sulking over my avowed intention of inviting Philip Veritzen down to the east end of the island. When he reached the farmhouse and signaled me to remain after Mary and Noel had gone into the house, I was much surprised, for in view of the odd conditions under which we were living, I did not think that he would expostulate with me concerning my proposed invitation to the famous theatrical producer. Yet I could think of nothing else that he could wish to say to me. We very rarely consulted each other about anything any more.

But this communication after all had nothing to do with my employer.

"This is as good a time as any for me to check up on those lads over in Grimsey's shack," he said. "I'll just walk over now, and see what they have to say for themselves. See that Junior doesn't leave the yard. I don't think he's spied me yet."

"He's probably having his nap," I returned, glad that I was spared the sarcastic remarks I had expected upon the subject of Philip Veritzen. "But I'll make sure that he stays safely here. Do you think you'll find both men? Has that red-bearded man had time to get back there?"

Dicky glanced at me oddly.

"I'll have to take that risk," he said. "At any rate I'll stick around until he does come to the shack."

I looked nervously at him.

"They're not very prepossessing men," I said a bit timidly. "Are you sure it's safe—"

He laughed a bit unpleasantly.

"There's no danger of your becoming a fascinating widow through anything they may do," he said. "They're ruffians, of course, but they have common sense enough to keep out of the trouble they'd surely get into if they tackled me."

He swung the stick he always carries, the end of which I know is especially loaded. It is one which he carried ever since an attack made upon him in the street one night several years ago. But I shivered at the implication of possible danger which his gesture implied.

Marion Athletics Trounce Massillon Club, 9-4

SPORT SAUCE

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB

MANAGER Francis W. Bacon of the Athletics yesterday established a unique record which probably will not be equalled here this season. Bacon faced the Massillon pitcher on five occasions but was not once given a "time at bat" on the scorebook.

He received three bases on balls, was hit once, and knocked out a sacrifice fly on another trip to the plate. In addition he made two runs.

BIGGS, the Massillon pitcher, tells us that he had not thrown a ball across the plate this season until yesterday. Maybe that accounts for his eight walks and several wild pitches. At that, Marion got only eight hits and would have had a tough time winning the game had it not been for the oversupply of errors in one inning.

"GIVE Rowan a place on first base, and he'll steal home," cried a wildly enthusiatsic fan in the grandstand yesterday. And we're almost inclined to believe him, although the remark is a trifle exaggerated.

Rowan didn't have to steal second at any time yesterday so he stole third while the catcher was returning the ball to the pitcher.

ANOTHER Marion County high school coach will not return next year.

Coach Alvin C. Broholm of Caledonia, is the third to join the ranks of those leaving the county. Supt. J. M. Diley of Pleasant Township, and Supt. L. B. Brown of Prospect, are the other two who are not again applicants for their respective positions.

The news of Mr. Broholm's departure has disheartened many of the ardent basketball fans in that vicinity and the members of this year's squad who will again be in school next year have petitioned the coach to stay with them.

Just what effect his absence next year will have on what promises to be the county championship basketball boys' team can hardly be reckoned at this time. The ability of the new coach will have much to do with that.

The Caledonia team lost but three games out of 15 during the last season and will have all but one of the players back next year. Knowing the ability of every individual at the start of the season, Coach Broholm would, without a doubt, have had the championship five of the county and a team that would make a great showing in the district tourney.

It remains to be seen what a new coach can do with the boys who held steady jobs under Coach Broholm for one season. The newcomer will have a hard task on his hands. Caledonia is looking forward to the title next year and it will expect the coach to develop the team that can cop the banner.

COACH JOHN W. WILCE of Ohio State gridders, has announced that "although non-scouting football is the eventual, logical high point to be reached in the grid game," he will not enter into an agreement with Princeton to play the Tigers during the coming season without scouting.

Princeton is a leader among Eastern colleges in developing, or attempting to develop, the non-scouting game. Coach Tad Jones of Yale is another supporter of this idea.

Ohio State and other western colleges may begin that practice next year or the following year but all Big Ten football teams will probably have their regular scouts at work during the coming season. Coach Wilce of State, has indicated that the 1928 Princeton contest probably will be staged without scouting.

Because there is a great deal in the world to eat is no reason why considerable of it shouldn't be let alone.

Don't encourage people to "act natural," too much. Some had better not.

Main Gets 11 Strikeouts; Visitors Lead for Seven Innings; Errors Galore

Massillon Shafer-Hammond Lumber Nine Blows Up in Seventh Frame, After Holding 4-3 Lead; Errors Responsible for Three Marion Runs

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB
Sports Editor, The Star

WITH Morris Main, Marion hurler, holding well in pinches and administering 11 strikeouts during the contest, the Marion Athletics yesterday afternoon turned in their third victory of the season when they trimmed the Massillon Shafer-Hammond nine, 9 to 4, at Lincoln Park.

Main allowed eight hits and joined with his teammates in making one of the seven errors charged up against the locals. The game in fact, was just one error after another, Marion had its share in the first seven innings and was trailing on the end of a 4 to 3 count until that frame, when Massillon suddenly blew up.

Two hits and two walks combined with three errors on the part of Massillon, gave the locals four runs in the "lucky" seventh, when things were not looking so bright. The rally gave Marion a three run lead and put the game on ice. Just to make the affair more certain, the local boys scored two more in the eighth.

Massillon Scores

Massillon scored first, counting a couple in the second frame. A walk and an error placed two men on the sacks and a long single by R. Miller cleared the bags. The visitors' other two runs came in the fourth stanza, two errors being responsible. No hits were recorded for the Massillon nine in the fourth.

Marion scored in the second inning when Taylor walked, went to third on Conroy's double and crossed the plate on Rizor's two-bagger. Conroy was caught at home.

Athletics Score

The Athletics then forged ahead in the third inning when Biggs, Massillon moundsmen, aided the locals in staging a big parade around the bases. He allowed four walks and one hit in that inning. Rowan was given a free ticket to first and went to second on Buckland's sacrifice fly. He stole third as Bacon walked and scored on Price's sacrifice fly. Bacon came home when Taylor smacked out the first three-bagger of the season. Conroy and Rizor walked filling the bases, and Harn was putout at first for the third out.

After going six innings without an error, Massillon blew sky-high in the seventh frame as Marion's two hits counted for four runs. The inning was featured by the wild throws and muffed balls checked up against the visitors. Buckland and Conroy got the hits and scored two of the runs while Price and Taylor got bases on balls and later crossed the plate. Only one of the four runs was earned.

An error, a walk, and a hit accounted for two more in the eighth, Rowan and Bacon scoring.

Main, Has 11 Strikeouts

While Main of Marion, was making an excellent record by striking out 11 men, Biggs of Massillon, was making a record for passing out free tickets to first base. He walked eight men. On two occasions, yesterday, Main struck out thre men in one inning. In the third frame, with a man on second and third constantly threatening, the Marion hurler struck out the three next men to bat. Incidentally, they headed the batting list for the vistors. Only three men faced him in the sixth inning. They went down in one, two, three order without even seeing the ball.

Marion's infield yesterday looked like a wreck. Bacon and Conroy started the miserable performance in the first inning when they pulled the well-known Alphonse ad Gaston act. Rizor fumbled an easy grounder on one occasion and made a bad throw to first at another time. Main threw wild to second while trying to catch a man napping off base. Buckland made a wild stab at a grounder that would probably have been stopped by Rizor, and Bacon also made a couple of boners. The outfield had only a few chances but handled all perfectly.

MAIN GETS GLOVE FOR STRIKEOUTS

Main struck out three men in one inning yesterday and will receive a glove from James Prendergast for the feat. The prize was among those being awarded by Marion merchants to players who accomplish various things on the diamond.

In order to be certain that he would get the glove, Main duplicated the act in another inning, striking out the only three men to face him in that stanza.

YANKEES AND PIRATES LEAD MAJOR LEAGUES

Yanks Win Another; Pittsburgh Defeats Giants for Fourth Time

NEW YORK, May 23—With the first intersectional jaunts ended, the Yankees and Pirates are setting the pace in the major league pennant races today. The Yanks led their nearest contender, Chicago, by four games, but in the National League the Pirates have an edge of only half a game on the fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals in a hot four-cornered contest.

Due to the strength of the Western clubs in the National League, the West won intersectional honors with 51 victories and 44 defeats. In the American League the east and west split exactly even.

The best records were made by the Yankees, with 10 victories and three defeats, and the Cubs with nine won and three lost.

READING LOSES 25 STRAIGHT GAMES

Jersey City, N. J., May 23—A new record of 25 straight defeats has been set today by the Reading club of the International League, recently purchased by the Chicago Cubs. The former record of 23 consecutive defeats was set by Pittsburgh in 1890.

Reading lost two games to Jersey City yesterday. The team has won only three games and lost 35 this season.

Babe Hits Another

Babe Ruth took the lead in the home run marathon by hitting his tenth homer of the season against Cleveland yesterday. The Yanks won 7 to 2, Shocker obtaining revenge for an earlier defeat by Cleveland.

Vic Aldridge won his second game of the series as the Pirates downed the Giants, 9 to 4, for the fourth game in succession, and vaulted into first place. Hornsby hit his seventh homer.

The Brooklyn Robins, weakest hitting team in the majors, tired of their pop fly diet and buried the Phillies under a 20 to 4 score. Herman got five of Brooklyn's 22 hits and Dazzy Vance breezed home to his fifth consecutive triumph.

Cincinnati Wins

Cincinnati checked the Cubs' winning streak of six games, winning 8 to 4 behind the pitching of Red Lucas. Charley Root, who was undefeated by the Reds last year, was shelled off the mound, and the Cubs dropped into second place.

After hitting safely in 21 consecutive games, Ty Cobb was stopped as the Athletics beat the White Sox 6 to 1. Ehmke limited the Sox to five hits.

The Browns scored two runs in the ninth and nosed out the Red Sox, 6 to 5, sweeping the series. The Browns, given up as hopeless by baseball's most noted specialists in a pre-season diagnosis, have won seven of their last eight games.

A home run by Manush with two on in the ninth enabled the Tigers to negotiate a 6 to 6 tie with the Senators.

Why are most of the well-told anecdotes old? Because they have been told so many times?

Hoylake, Eng., May 23—The British amateur golf championship opens here today with an entry of 197, 19 less than last year at Muirfield and 26 less than in 1921, when the event was last held at Hoylake.

The event bears little resemblance to the strenuous contest of last year. Jesse Sweetser has returned the cup and there are only 17 players from overseas.

Of these, the best known is W. J. Platt, who played in the U. S. A. team against Britain in 1921. Nobody expects an American victory on this occasion.

HEAVY TRADING DOESN'T STOP PRICE ADVANCE

Call Money Rate Advances to 4½ Per Cent After Opening at Four

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks strong; industrial stocks strong; domestic bonds firm; foreign bonds steady; call money 4 per cent; grain firm; copper reactionary; oil weak; cotton strong; rubber steady; sugar steady; pig iron steady; foreign exchange steady.

New York, May 23—Industrial and railroad stock prices moved forward confidently in heavy trading today. The best gains were scored by the so-called "mystery stocks," these being the railroad stocks wanted for consolidation purposes, and the industrials and specialties under the domination of the pools.

A number of the specialties which were only recently forced into the spotlight, made sharp gains. The list included A. M. Byers, which added 4 points to last week's 10 point rise; International Nickel, which topped 65 after last week's 6 1-2 point advance; Timken, which carried its advance to 89; and Western Maryland common and preferred, which raced upward sensationally at the beginning of business.

The firming up of call money to 4½ per cent. After opening at 4 per cent, was no surprise to Wall Street, in view of Saturday's showing in the bank statement of a 60,000,000 decline in reserves. Banks made only moderate drains on the call loan market until after mid-day, when withdrawals became of larger proportions. But this did not halt the steady advance in the speculative favorites, most of which reached the best levels of the advance in the third hour.

Business and industrial reports were generally favorable. At least, Wall Street was inclined to ignore unfavorable factors like the southern floods and the coal strike, and to pin its faith to the enormous popular investment demand for stocks of all kinds, and the increasing purchasing power of American investors.

COTTON MARKET

New York, May 23—Cotton prices opened higher today, up 8 to 9 points. May opened at 16.05, up 8; July 16.27 up 7 and October 16.90 up 8.

TWO CULVERTS ADDED TO FLOOD LOSS IN COUNTY

Structures on Patton-pk and Near Claridon Collapse Following Heavy Rains

Collapse of two culverts over roadways in Marion County was added today to the damage toll from last week's heavy rainfall. Foundation material beneath the culverts was washed out by the downpour and this morning the structures gave way. One of the culverts was located on the Patton-pk, about four miles east of the city, and and the other was about a mile and a half north of Claridon on the Edward Gray road.

Workmen employed by County Surveyor Leavens were sent out this morning to make repairs, which were expected to be completed before the close of the day.

Repairs are in progress at other points where roads and bridges were damaged by washouts. The only road now closed because of flood damage is the Meeker-Agosta-rd, a bridge having gone down about a half-mile south of Meeker. Plans for reconstruction were to be made by the county commissioners this afternoon. It is probable that the road will be closed for several weeks until the work is finished.

Oveflow from the Scioto river on the road between Newman's and Prospect had left the highway today and traffic between these points has been resumed. Operation of cars on the C., D. & M. between Newman's and Prospect was resumed about noon, Saturday.

Sleet Most Perilous Part of Journey for Lindbergh

GREAT FRIGHT CAME AT PARIS BEFORE CROWDS

Youthful Aviator Feared Welcoming Mob Would Destroy Plane, He Says

Paris, May 23—Capt. Charles Lindbergh has accomplished one of the most romantic feats in history, but it is no romance to him.

If Lindbergh feels the least bit romantic about this great achievement, he is confining his sentiments within his own bosom. He describes his flight across the Atlantic alone, as casually as though he were describing a walk in the park.

Here and there one gathers by inference that this was something of an adventure, but according to Lindbergh his great fright came when he was safely aground at Paris and saw himself confronted by mobs of thousands of enthusiastic, half mad admirers all eager to clutch his hand.

Sleet Perilous

Lindbergh doesn't say so, but it seems from his story that perhaps the most perilous time of his flight was when he encountered sleet off Newfoundland. Sleet forming on the wings of an airplane may easily lessen the lifting power of the wings to such a point that the plane cannot stay aloft. Lindbergh knew of the danger of the sleet and tried to fly above and then tried to fly below the storm, skimming over the water only 10 feet above the waves.

"I was lucky," he explained in his modest way. "I found a happy medium and flew through the worst of the storm."

Telling his story to the press, Lindbergh talked in straight-forward English and used no fancy terms of narration. His story was as though told to the mechanics back in the hangar at Garden City.

The high lights of Captain Lindbergh's own story of his flight are as follows:

Frightened at Crowds

"I was more frightened by the crowds at Le Bourget than at any time during the trip. If I hadn't gotten out of the plane they would have broken it up.

"The most exciting and dangerous part of the trip was when I encountered sleet, after I left Newfoundland. Some of the sleet was too high to fly over. Some of it was too low to fly under, but I was lucky and found a happy medium between. I flew as low as 10 feet above the water, and as high as 10,000 feet, but clouds kept me down when I wished I might take on a little more altitude.

"I saw one ship, but I don't know what time it was, otherwise I saw nothing but water.

"I encountered more fog on the trip than I expected. I wasnt sleepy, but I was very thirsty.

"It was no strain. I wouldn't hesitate to try it again, over the same distance. I had enough gas to go 500 miles more, and I didn't try to economize at all.

"I had a very good compass. That was all I needed.

"I have no intention of flying back.

"Once over Ireland, it was nothing to cross over the channel, but when I hit Cherbourg, I was somewhat nettled for a moment. Then I took a chance and had no great difficulty in hitting the right course.

Daylight Helped Him

"Daylight helped me until I was within 20 minutes of Paris. Then I caught the flares at the field. The lights of Paris somewhat confused me and crossing the city was not easy. I didn't intend to make any mistake at that stage of the game. So I circled the city a couple of times and finally headed straight toward Le Bourget, which by that time was as light as noon with flares and searchlight.

"I was not really uncomfortable for want of sleep during the flight.

"I can't say that flying is hard work. One does not hold a plane as one holds an automobile.

"That's all there is to my story. My plans I haven't any."

A correspondent interjected, "I suppose they'll open champagne for you in St. Louis?"

Must Have Got Odds

Well, some of them must have got good odds on this flight," answered Lindbergh. "I told them to take everything they could get if I got started.

"That's about all I can tell you. We got here all right, and the only trouble we had was the sleet storm off Newfoundland. It wasn't so hard, and the worst of all was those crowds at Le Bourget. They certainly frightened me. If I hadn't tumbled out, my fine bus would have been smashed, so I jumped out of it and fell on the shoulders of the crowd."

the joy of a REALLY clean home

Housecleaning may not be much fun, but what a delight it is to know that from top to bottom your home is clean and bright and shining!

Don't let any shadow mar your enjoyment of the fruits of your efforts. Don't finish your labors with the feeling that rugs and carpets are not spick-and-span.

For, unless you have a Greater Hoover, you must know that your floor coverings are not as thoroughly clean as they might be. You must know that it goes far beyond all other cleaning methods in efficiency—that it cleans even 131% better in ordinary cleaning time than any previous Hoover model!

There's a very good reason for this remarkable cleaning ability. "Positive Agitation," a revolutionary cleaning principle, creates this wholly new standard of cleanliness by beating out the heavy destructive grit that is buried in the very heart of the rug.

Let us bring a Hoover to your home and show you how "Positive Agitation" tap-taps this dangerous, rug-ruining dirt to the surface. We'll show you, too, how the Hoover dusting tools aid in countless ways in your spring cleaning. Just phone us when you are ready, and we'll clean a rug free.

Deputy Sheriff Raymond Stansberry and Marshall Sherry were the arresting officers and they took Dean into custody when the latter was instructing two youths to carry another letter demanding ransom to Rev. Aloys M. Fish, rector of Shrine Church.

BEHIND THE SCREEN

Mary Astor

YOU remember Mary Astor, the sweet unsophisticated girl on the screen who so often stirred your emotions to an unbelievable pitch of sympathy for her trials and tribulations with the ever-present and designing villain. You were ready to get up and protect this persecuted, innocent creature from the clutches of the brute, to shield her, to keep her as an ideal of all that is fine and true in womanhood. And, oh, the thrill of relief when finally in the closing scenes you beheld her safe in the arms of a noble, tender hero.

But this unsophisticated, demure Mary Astor is to play a joke on you in her next picture, "Two Arabian Knights." She has turned vampire! Can you believe that? She is to be cast as a vampish, veiled Arabian beauty, leading her knights a merry chase. It ought to prove rather gratifying to see this lady get even on the screen with the handsome screen villains who have troubled her so much heretofore.

By the way, Mary also is introducing a new waist line in the gown she is wearing in her new role. It may settle a great deal of controversy among the ladies as to the most fashionable trend in waistlines.

Joseph Cawthorn, comedy star, has been engaged to play a part in support of Olive Borden in "The Secret Studio."

Mrs. Wallace Reid's latest picture is known as "The Satin Woman."

Nancy Nash is playing a lead in "Rich, But Honest," to be released soon

Douglas McLean has started filming "Soft Cushions." Sue Caroll, a recent "discovery," is playing opposite him.

Florence Vidor now is working on her next starring picture, "The World at Her Feet." David Torrence is her leading man.

Jobyna Ralston has been selected to play opposite Charles Ray in the production of "Betty's a Lady."

Fannie Brice, the comedienne, like all the rest of players that come to California, has fallen for the movies. She just signed a contract that calls for her appearance in motion pictures.

Mary Philbin and Jean Hershot are being considered in the leading roles in "Viennesse Lovers."

NINE TEACHERS ARE HIRED BY SCHOOL BOARD

Two Instructors Given Leave of Absence; Diplomas Are Authorized

Nine additional teachers were employed and two of the present teaching force were granted leaves of absence by the Marion Board of Education at a special meeting held at the office of Superintendent J. H. Mason, Saturday afternoon.

The board also completed arrangements for the annual graduation exercises of Harding High School by adopting a resolution formally authorizing presentation of diplomas to the 226 members of the senior class on proper certification of K. H. Marshall, high school principal. Presentation of diplomas will take place at the annual commencement exercises to be held at the Chautauqua Pavilion the night of June 3.

Summer School Planned

Provision for holding the usual summer school for the benefit of backward pupils and others who wish to take special work was made by adoption of another resolution. The school, which will be held at the Central Junior High building beginning June 6 and continuing six weeks, will be in charge of J. C. Emmons, principal of the Silver Street school and Miss Alice Dombaugh, State Street principal. Other teachers will be employed should their services become necessary.

New teachers employed were Misses Florence Syferd, Helen Roby, Mildred Wetterauer, Mary Cook, Mildred Crow and Mildred Biddle and Mrs. Floy Wideman, all of Marion, who will be assigned to grade schools or Central High. Miss Lyndall Miller of Bryan and Russell Dunlap, of Columbus, both of whom will teach in the high school commercial department.

Complete assignment of all teachers will be made by Superintendent Mason at a meeting of the school board in August. The remainder of the teaching corps was appointed at a meeting of the board held two weeks ago.

Leave Granted

A one-year leave of absence was granted Miss Mildred Beasley, third grade teacher at the Silver Street school, who requested the vacation for the benefit of her health.

A leave of absence was also granted Miss Naomi Rinehart, sixth grade teacher at State Street school, to allow her time for completing her college training. She expects to resume her teaching duties after a two-year leave.

Ertman Beers, manual training teacher at Central Junior High, was employed for two months special service supervising repair of desks and other school equipment during the summer vacation period.

Given Extra Work

J. H. Smith, Harding High physics teacher, was also employed for two months' extra service during the summer. He will have charge of the vocational school, which operates 11 months each year, two months more than the regular city school schedule.

Other business of a routine nature was transacted, the meeting having been called to enable Superintendent Mason to dispose of all pending business in preparation for his trip to Europe. Superintendent Mason and his wife left this afternoon for New York City, from where they will sail Wednesday afternoon. They will visit various European countries and plan to return on a boat leaving Southampton on July 16.
